Not illustrated. 1915 Excerpt: . below the position of the sharpest focus and then raise it until the image appears most sharply defined, thus avoiding the error due to back-lash. It is obvious that the cell must be accurately ground in order that the cover glass shall lie parallel to the object slide, or if not truly parallel, that the measurement of the depth of the cell and that of the displacement of the image be made at the same point. Since there is always a thin film of liquid between the cover glass and top of the cell, the value for A should be determined with the cell filled and all data necessary for the computation be made at once. This method gives values to three decimals for n of which two places at least will be correct and the third not far from the true value. Correct results are more easily obtained with red or yellow light than by ordinary daylight. In the absence of a suitable cell, a simple container for the liquid may be made from narrow strips of glass cut from an ordinary thin object slide and laid as shown in Fig. 111. These strips of glass are easily cut with a glazier's diamond or with the sharp end of a file. The liquid to be studied is allowed to drop into the opening between the glass strips, and )jr the cell upon being covered remains filled by capillarity. The cover is gently pressed down...
