RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 44 pages. Original publisher: Washington, D. C. : The Office, 1997 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)39964242 Subject: Postal service - Illinois -- Chicago -- Costs. Excerpt: . . . B-276037 Suburban facility in Bedford Park, IL. However, in December 1993, the Postal Service decided to retain mail processing for the 17 ZIP Codes in the new Main Post Office because of political concerns about moving jobs DAR, about 60 percent of the out of the city. According to the April 1994 new Post Offices construction was complete at that time. The DAR indicated that the decision to incorporate processing for the 17 ZIP Codes 16 and automated mail processing plans into the new facility required a said that DAR complete redesign of the workroom layout. Further, the because of incomplete and poor quality contract drawings, the projects structural, mechanical, and electrical costs significantly exceeded original 17 estimates. Other unanticipated costs involved dealing with a water tunnel and an abandoned freight tunnel under the site that were found after construction began. DAR also indicated that the adjacent Polk Street bridge, which was The closed by the city in 1993 because of safety concerns, was needed to provide access to the new facility. Postal officials believed that the Chicago Union Station Company, an Amtrak subsidiary, took responsibility for maintaining the bridge when it acquired the property. DAR indicated that the Postal Service was in the process of negotiating The an agreement for repairing the Polk Street bridge, that it was confident of recovering the repair costs from the Chicago Union Station Company, and that work on repairing the bridge should proceed to ensure truck access to 18 the new Main Post Office by the time the facility was completed. In June 1995,...
