It is not at all necessary to make use of advanced analysis to establish the existence of some of the most important electromagnetic phenomena. There are always some cases which will yield to very simple mathematical treatment and yet which establish and illustrate the physical phenomena as well as the solution by the most elaborate analysis of the most general cases which could be given. The study of these simple cases would, I think, often be of advantage even to students whose mathematical attainments are sufficient to enable them to follow the solution of the more general cases. For in these simple cases the absence of...
