To the Late Charge of the Most Rev. Doctor Magee, Protestant Archbishop of Dublin: Submitted, Most Respectfully, to Those to Whom the Above Charge Was Addressed Men Brethren, A Charge, breathing discord and proclaiming dissension, has been lately addressed to you, by the most dignified Ecclesiastic of the Established Church in your province. This Prelate has assured you, that you are competent to judge all things. I think differently; but, I am satisfied that you are competent to decide upon the merits of his Charge, and it is upon those merits that I appeal to your judgment. For many of you, individually, I entertain sentiments of the highest respect; to you all I am bound as a fellow-christian, by ties of charity - ties, which never have been, and I hope never will be, severed. When, therefore, in the sequel of the observations which I am about to address to you, the vices of heresy and schism are reprov'd, and the conduct of some furious men treated with severity - bear in mind, I beseech you, the following sentiments of St. Augustin, addressed by him to a numerous portion, clergy and people, of the Donatists, - sentiments, which in your regard, I fully and unequivocally adopt.
